Adina Schechter

Secondary Teacher Network Coach

Boston Teacher Residency

MEEA Advisory Board Member

Adina Schechter is a veteran educator and teacher leader who has shaped teaching and learning at the classroom, school, and district level for over two decades — from pioneering restorative justice practices as a high school English teacher, to leading school-wide instructional coaching, to launching district-wide equity work as the Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Belonging Coach for Milton Public Schools.

Adina now serves as a Secondary Teacher Network Coach at the Boston Teacher Residency (BTR), taking a boots-on-the-ground approach to supporting new BTR graduates through their first three years in the classroom — working alongside them and helping them study and grow their own practice. She also leads BTR's "Grad Groups," this year focused on restorative justice and middle school teaching.

Across every role, her passion has been empowering adolescents — especially those who have not been traditionally successful in school — to read critically, write boldly, and speak with confidence.

Rooted. Responsive. Resilient.
